“Therefore let us go forth to Him without the camp, bearing His reproach: for we have not here an abiding city, but we seek the coming one. (Hebrews 13:13-14)

A believer was attending an educational institute at a university in New England. During the first session of the group, as a get acquainted activity, the members were asked to identify themselves by their favorite book title. As they got up to introduce themselves they were to name the book, tell what it was about, and why it was their favorite.

After hearing group members identify with such books as Walden, The Odyssey, The One Minute Manager, and Megatrends, the believer identified himself with the Bible, because it was the Word of God that brought the promise of salvation through the person of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. Needless to say, several interesting things followed.

To begin with, he got the nickname of "the preacher" for the duration of the conference. Secondly, whenever any of the readings contained any biblical allusions or references, he was called upon to explain them. Thirdly, while groups gathered each night to go drinking, he never had to worry about making excuses, because he was never invited. Fourthly, from the time he made himself known as a Bible believer, he became introduced to the other Christians in the group. And finally, by humbly taking his stand with Christ, he had several opportunities during the three weeks of the institute to speak to others about Christ.

While many believers work very hard to separate from the world, this man of God found the key. Identification with Christ leads to separation from the world. As you take your place with Him, while those who hate the light will separate, those who love the light will join you in it (1 Jn. 1:5-7).
